

Ember Exchange

The Ember Exchange was formed soon after the settling of BloodHaven.

The Ember Exchange, an essential part of the Order of the BloodBrothers, was founded during a time of strife when resources were scarce, and alliances were fragile. Legend has it that its origins date back to a moment known as the "First Kindling," when the flames of trade were first ignited by BloodHaven's earliest settlers.

Under the banner of the BloodBrothers, this vast trade networks stretch across the lands, uniting remote outposts and bustling cities. Through intricate trade routes and carefully negotiated agreements, they ensure that all parties involved thrive in both wealth and influence, becoming a powerful force not just in battle, but in the economy of the realm.

The Exchange is guided by the principle of balanced reciprocity, where those who trade within its networks stand to gain prosperity, and the guarantee that the flames of their craft will burn brighter in the ever-expanding dominion of the Order.
